Emergency Projects on State Route 330

San Bernardino Mountains – The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) awarded the first of three emergency projects on Friday, January 7, to begin repairs on State Route 330 (SR-330). The route was severely damaged by washouts and slides during a severe storm on December 20, 2010, which resulted in road loss and full closure. The repairs to restore the route will be completed in three phases. Phase I was awarded to Skanska and is estimated at $6 million.

Phase I will address the lesser of several washouts on the roadway along with culvert and slope repair. The work in Phase I will also prepare the roadway to allow access for equipment to begin work at the major slide.

Phase II is expected to be under contract in the coming weeks to repair damage above the major washout. Phase III will then restore the roadway at this location and is currently undergoing the planning and approval process.

Caltrans District 8 Director, Dr. Raymond W. Wolfe, stated that his goal is to “safely rebuild State Route 330 for the traveling public and to do so as quickly as possible”. The work to restore the route is being estimated at one year.

The Department is committed to working with elected officials, local agencies, and the public to continue communication as the work progresses. Caltrans officials have met with Senator Bob Dutton, Assemblyman Paul Cook, and County Supervisor Neil Derry, and will continue working closely with their offices.

Caltrans advises motorists who normally use SR-330 to use SR-18 and SR-38 to mountain area destinations.
